What is Pre-Shipment Inspection services

The Pre-Shipment Inspection (PSI) is one of many types of quality control inspections conducted by QGS. It is an important step in the quality control process and is the method for checking the quality of goods before they are shipped.

When the goods 80% above are ready for shipping, A pre-shipment inspection need to be performed. our inspectors random select samples from finished goods according to international statistical standard Acceptable Quality Level ANSI/ASQ Z1.4-2008 (AQL) and MIL-STD-105E (ISO2859-1). The PSI confirms that finished products are in full compliance with your specifications.

When is a suitable time to conduct a Pre-Shipment Inspection?

A Pre-Shipment Inspection is suggested to be scheduled at least 2 working days before the planned loading date, so that the buyer can have enough time to check the report and decide whether to release the shipment as planned, or to discuss corrective actions with the manufacturer.
