India: Chirag Taneja, Cofounder and CEO, — an e-commerce company on a mission to help direct-to-consumer brands and marketplaces increase their sales through its Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning software.

Indonesia: Tiger Fang, Cofounder and CEO, — Technologies — a logistics platform connecting shippers with truckers to bring down logistics costs by removing middlemen and reducing empty trips.

China: Hsu Po-Lin, Founder & CEO, — — a MedTech company that develops circulatory support devices for acute/severe cardiac and pulmonary failure.

Singapore: Gillian Tee, Founder and CEO, — — a healthcare services platform that caters to adults and the elderly, connecting households with licensed caregivers, nurses, therapists and physicians.

Entrepreneurs like these are shaping the future of business. From an AI-powered e-commerce solution to helping patients manage heart conditions, the winning companies are demonstrating how digital transformation is creating possibilities and impacting lives,” said Kawal Preet, president of Asia Pacific, Middle East and Africa (AMEA) region at FedEx Express. “ In the past, we ’ ve seen the winners of our competition take their businesses to the next level with the help of a FedEx grant. That ’ s what FedEx is passionate about — giving small businesses the right resources, tools and solutions they need, while remaining a trusted advisor to help them accelerate their business on the global stage.

First launched in the U.S. in 2012, FedEx expanded SBGC to 31 international markets, including Europe and across Asia Pacific, Middle East & Africa (AMEA). For more information about the contest, please click here.
