Hanhua Total Chemical (formerly Samsung Total Chemical)

Since its establishment in 1988, Samsung Comprehensive Chemical (now Hanwa Total) has driven the development of the petrochemical industry in the Republic of Korea through continuous technological innovation and efforts to explore global markets

In 2003, Samsung Comprehensive Chemical (now Hanhua Total) established a joint venture with Shijieji's French energy and chemical company 'Total Group' to establish Samsung Total Chemical, laying a solid foundation for becoming a global energy and chemical company in the future. In 2015, Samsung Comprehensive Chemical and Han Hua Group completed equity transfer, officially becoming a subsidiary of Han Hua Group in South Korea, dreaming of another leap forward.

Our Dashan factory is located in the Dashan Petrochemical Park in Ruishan City, Chungnam, South Korea. It consists of 15 unit factories and is a comprehensive energy petrochemical company. Our main products include base oil, polymer resins such as ethylene and propylene, polyethylene (PE), polypropylene (PP) and other chemical products, as well as petroleum products such as xylene (PX) and styrene monomer (SM), which involve various aspects of daily life.

With the help of the expansion project of the Aromatic Second Factory and CFU (Condensation and Decomposition Equipment) completed in 2014, Hanhua Total has officially developed into the energy industry by producing gasoline, diesel, aviation oil, fuel oil, LPG and other products.

In 2015, Hanhua Total, which officially became a new member of Hanhua Group, will work together with other subsidiaries in the petrochemical field of Hanhua Group to maximize synergies and further enhance global competitiveness.

Becoming a Lingjun enterprise in the global energy and chemical industries is the grand blueprint of Hanhua Total.
