Mobil Lubricants is a heavy load gear oil with excellent performance for all types of sealed gears and sliding and rolling component bearings. This product provides excellent service in equipment protection, lubricating oil life and no-fault operation, and improves customer productivity. These scientifically designed synthetic lubricants are prepared from synthetic basic fluids and have excellent antioxidant and thermal stability properties and low temperature fluidity. The combination of intrinsic high viscosity index and unique additive formulation makes this series of products perform well under harsh high and low temperature working conditions. The essence of synthetic base oil also makes the product have excellent low temperature performance. They have excellent extremely stressful properties and can withstand impact loads. The low traction characteristics inherent in the synthetic base oil can reduce fluid friction on irregular surfaces, such as gear and rolling element bearing load areas. Reduced fluid friction can reduce the working temperature, thus improving the efficiency of the gear.
