Aiming at this problem, this paper combines sewage pretreatment, physicochemical treatment, biochemical treatment and disinfection treatment with integrated sewage treatment equipment. Taking a sewage treatment project of a hospital as an example, the application of integrated process in hospital water treatment was analyzed, and a set of hospital-chemical sewage treatment equipment was developed. Operation and maintenance requirements of sewage treatment equipment: 1. Operating managers and maintenance personnel should be familiar with the maintenance requirements of mechanical and electrical equipment. 2. The structure of the structure and various gate valves, guardrails, climbing ladders, pipelines, etc. should be inspected, repaired and treated regularly, and the damaged lighting equipment should be replaced in time. 3. Inspection and fastening of various equipment connectors should be carried out regularly, and the fragile parts of coupling should be replaced regularly. 4. Opening and closing tests should be done regularly for all kinds of pipeline gate valves. 5. Electrical control cabinets should be inspected and cleaned regularly, and their various technical performances should be tested. 6. Limit switches and manual and electric interlocking devices of electric gate valves should be checked regularly. 7. After each pump shutdown, the sealing condition of packing or oil seal should be checked and the necessary treatment should be carried out. And fill or replace fillers, lubricants and greases as needed. 8. Where a device with a wire rope is installed, the wear of the rope is greater than 10% of the original diameter, or when one of the strands has broken, it must be replaced. 9. All kinds of machinery and equipment should be well maintained.
