Just like there are no two identical leaves in the world, everyone has a unique excellence. Being good at tolerating others' shortcomings and appreciating others' outstanding points are not only reflected in a broad mind, but also in a kind of wisdom of dealing with people. The earlier you can find your best place, the more you can give full play to your potential, and the more you can embrace success.

Use the time of a flower to interpret life and appreciate a kind of unforgettable brilliance. It's like a devout believer standing on the holy land of Jerusalem, enjoying and striving for life without any distractions. Listen, whose youth is singing?
