Start the night before. This might seem obvious but so many people burn the candle at both ends. It makes sense to get to sleep at a reasonable hour in order to get in 6-8 quality hours of sleep. Some need more, few of us need less. Become a sleep expert and routine your bed time for optimal waking the next day. Another secret is to do a ' media audit ' of your free hours prior to bed. If you find yourself zoning out via TV for no good reason, turn the tube off and read, work out or talk with friends.

Practice early morning rituals. A strong start to the day is key for designing your ideal work experience. When you get up early, it ' s as if you ' ve already accomplished something. Throw in a Coffee ritual (but not too much!) and you have another reason to get up. I ' ll admit, I enjoy a good 7 minute snooze button as much as the next guy, but only to a degree. Put mind over mattress and get moving in the AM.
