compression testers

compression pressure should be tested on each cylinder in succession at operating temperature and compared with the manufacturer ' s data. if the results are below the manufacturer ' s figures, it can be assumed that the piston rings and valves are leaking.in addition to the standard connectors (m 18x1.5 and m 14x1.25 threads), special adapters can be supplied with different lengths and threads, including versions with clamps for use on commercial vehicles.

a list of the available adapters is shown in the ´ list of adapters for compression pressure testers (kp series) and pressure loss testers (drv series) ´ <http://www.autotestgeraete.de/manuals.htm>the requisite password will be supplied on request, e-mail: atg-info@leitenberger.de
